Timely & Thought Provoking

Monday Keynote - Kathy Parry

Rubber Band Resilience: How to Stretch Without Snapping

With quotes like, “transform or die” and “disruption is king” it is pertinent that changes, especially those from technology, regulations and staffing, be embraced by professionals. The ability to apply a disruption-friendly mindset to transitional shifts will be necessary to serve customers, retain personnel and grow revenue. Equipping your team with the skill set to move through transitions while continuing to produce is imperative for organizational success.

Road blocks and unforeseen adversity, both personal and professional, stretch us every day. In this powerful keynote/ session Kathy will share how devastating news led her on a journey to discovering the keys to thriving in the face of challenging circumstances. While sharing her 3-R method for resilient behaviors (React, Reframe, Re-energize), Ms. Parry will engage the audience using questions, humore and interactive exercises.

Tuesday Keynote - Criticality of Early Communication for Project Success

Tuesday's keynote will feature a panel discussion will be Dr. Nakisa Alborz, Larry R. Dysert, CCP CEP DRMP FAACE Hon. Life, Dave Kyle, CCP CEP, and H. Lance Stephenson, CCP FAACE.

The clear definition and communication of objectives, goals, and requirements in the early phases of a project sets the stage for a successful outcome. The panelists will discuss the advantages of early and ongoing communication. They will also highlight strategies for implementing effective communication and provide anecdotal stories of poor communication.
